After my question in last months newsletter to if we should carry on with the newsletter, we got many positive replies but do you know what the sad thing was that most of them came from people in the USA who forwarded on to their club members. Not one CSA club got back to me.....Does that tell you something.

So here is the list of clubs and what I understand they do.

I believe they DO NOT forward on to members

1. Anguilla Sailing Association
2. Antigua Yacht Club....Forwarded 2 letters then stopped
3. Bequia Sailing Club
4. Federacion Dominicana de Vela
5. Grand Cayman Sailing Club
6. Grenada Sailing Association
7. Grenada Yacht Club
8. Jamaica Yachting Association Harbour
9. Jolly Harbour Yacht Club
10. Kats St. Johns

11. Ligue de Voile Martinique
12. N.A.S.A.F
13. Puerto Rico
14. St.Barths Yacht Club
15. St.Croix Yacht Club
16. St.Lucia Sailing Association
17. St.Thomas Yacht Club
18. Trinidad and Tobago Sailing Association
19. Triskell Club
20. Club de Pesca de Cartagena.....I don't know if they do or not.

I believe they DO forward on to their members:

1. Barbados Sailing Association.....I have been told they do
2. Royal BVI Yacht Club.....I have been told they do
3. St.Maarten Yacht Club.....I know they do

The regatta memberships are some what different but they too could forward on if they wish.

24—29 April 2011—Sailors come to Antigua for thrilling, adrenalin-pumping sailing and the competitors at the 44th Antigua Sailing Week certainly got what they came for. Virtually every day big breeze and lumpy seas spiced up the action with 20 knots or more of wind being the norm throughout most of the week. It was a wet, wild ride upwind but with a sea temperature of 25°C, it was a labour of love. Big wind and big waves provided Antigua Sailing Week with some outstanding racing in glorious sunshine with those who could stay in control downwind coming out on top. Whilst Antigua served up some classic racing conditions, there were quite a few changes to the Caribbean's oldest and most well-known regatta. Antigua Sailing Week has undergone a change of guard this year with a new Regatta Organising Committee.

"The new team brings a committed, experienced group of sailors together to resolve the critical planning and strategy issues required for a successful event," commented new Regatta Chairman, Ian Fraser. "Robust and constructive debate surrounding boat classification, ratings, courses and other essential details has brought an exciting and invigorating atmosphere."
